Dear Pascual Chiago,

This email is a final reminder concerning the revised version of your submitted article titled "Obstetric Paradoxes and Didactic Equations: The Impact of Mathematical Teaching on Childbirth and Beyond" Ref: CJOG0253. Despite our previous communications, the manuscript remains unsubmitted, and no response has been received from your end.

Your continued silence is a serious concern. We have extended ample time and multiple reminders to ensure fair communication. However, your consistent non-response leaves us with no alternative but to consider further action.

Please note, we are now preparing to escalate this matter to the department for formal notification regarding your revised version unless we receive your immediate clarification. The editorial office has fulfilled all its publication responsibilities promptly and in excellent faith. It is your professional obligation to complete the agreed process by clearing the due invoice without further delay. If there are any genuine issues preventing your submission, we expect a written explanation within 24 hours of receiving this email. Otherwise, we will proceed with departmental communication and necessary administrative steps without further notice.

We strongly advise you to treat this message as an urgent and final opportunity to resolve the matter amicably.

Awaiting your immediate response.

Regards,

Susan Lee | Clinical Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology
